Best Practice – I

Title of the Practice

Financial Aid to the deserving students by the faculties.

Objectives of the Practice

It has been observed from the student's profile joining various courses of the college that there are many students coming from the rural areas with low economic background. Their parent are poor so they are unable to provide them a sustained financial support because most of them are farmers and agriculture being a gamble with rain in the district, is not a source of assured income. So the noble objectives of the practice are

- To provide financial support to poor students especially rural students to save them from discontinuation of their studies due to poverty.
- To provide financial assistance to all eligible students without any discrimination of caste, creed or gender.
- To promote the 'equality' among the students.
- To inculcate the values of 'generosity' and awareness of social responsibility.

The expected outcome is that the students should be able to complete their degrees with good marks. The beneficiaries should treat the needy with the principle of 'lend a helping hand without discrimination.

The context

The noble objective had its teething as well as challenging troubles in its designing and implementation.

- Pooling up of the required resources was a tough task.
- After comprehensive deliberations with students and teachers, it was decided to extend the benefit to all the poor students, without any discrimination of caste, creed or gender.

- Verification of the financial backwardness of the aspirants was yet another challenge.
- The administration has insisted on strict adherence to the rules framed.

The Practice

In and around the areas of the college, there has been a long history of frequent droughts and famines, which have ravaged the rural life throwing the people into miserable conditions of abject poverty, illiteracy and ill-health. In a situation of such dire poverty, whatever meagre resources available are used primarily to make both ends meet. So, sending their children to the town for higher education becomes almost impossibility for the poor parents in the rural areas. Though, sometimes, they do venture to admit their children to colleges in the town, they are unable to give sustained financial support throughout the course of study because agriculture, being a gamble with rain in the district, is not a source of assured income. So, it is evident that without financial support from an external source, the rural youth cannot hope to successfully complete their higher studies.

This illustrious institution, true to its legacy of pro-poor-student attitude since its inception, has taken a firm resolve to extend all possible financial support to the deserving students and help them to realize their fond dream of acquiring higher education. For this, the college faculty members' voluntary provides financial assistance to eligible students.

The financial support is extended to all the deserving poor students without any discrimination of caste, creed or gender. The students whose parents do not have fixed reasonable source of income and do not enjoy any other financial assistance in the form of social welfare or endowment scholarships are eligible for the aid.

A duly constituted committee of three senior Persons of the college scrutinizes the applications received from the aspirants for the aid. This committee finalizes the list of eligible students for the aid after due verification of the documentary evidence enclosed and strictly following the guidelines framed for the purpose, and submits the same to the Principal for sanctioning the actual amount of the aid.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required

In the beginning of designing the best practice, some groups of the students opposed the idea that to provide financial support only some students all students should be given the opportunity.

They also expressed growing apprehension that the given amount would be misused.

As a result, most of the students and staff did not come forward to provide financial support to poor students.
